TASC Meeting

Thursday, September 10, 2020 - 7:00pm

Due to coronavirus concerns, TASC is currently meeting online.

A New Hope: Reaching a Turning Point in the Natural Sciences

Samuel Christie will discuss the history and trajectory of the role of creationism in the natural sciences.

Recent work has transitioned creation science from apologetic defense to offense, flipping many of the arguments commonly used by evolutionists against them.

Now, creation science is growing beyond apologetics into a solid scientific foundation that better supports new discoveries than does its opposition, even without an apologetic motive. This turning point brings hope for a new era of scientific discovery.
